DEDICATION

By Frances Beale

A special friend and devoted teacher of the tenth standard is Miss Irene Rosair.

Affectionately referred to as "Rosy," she will be remembered for her understanding, guidance, kind advice and fond patience. We shall cherish the lively lessons we shared with her in our last years of study in school.

Her marvellous memory and proficiency in the Arts and Science are achievements we admire and wish we could attain.

Young at heart, she joins in the class parties at end-of-term and is unlike the proverbial school ma'am. She is concerned with the welfare of each of her students, and at the feverish time of our G.C.E. examinations, she rides over to the hall to encourage her pupils.

AT GRADUATION

AFTER CLASS

She rehearses the participants for the Annual Elocution Contest, and the good results are due to her instruction and patience.

In her classrooms there has been and will always be an inflexible rule of discipline. No matter where we go we shall never meet a person more understanding and devoted than our Miss Rosair, and we shall remember our happy schooldays spent with her.

We, the tenth standard journalism students, on behalf of the school, dedicate our annual, the Swaying Palm of 1956-57, to our own Miss Rosair.
